Why We are Important

When men seek help they are 40% less likely to abuse alcohol or drugs as a means of coping with their crises

Our support and intervention programs are open to all men regardless of ethno-cultural background, race, gender-identity, sexual orientation or age

Financial abuse is a silent form of domestic abuse that can have devastating consequences

Intervention programs work by dealing with the issues associated with trauma and crisis. Our clients show consistent positive outcomes and learn coping strategies to live a healthier and happier life

Divorce and Separation are painful for all family members; children have increased risk of depression and anxiety

Victims of Intimate Partner Violence lose a total of 8 million days of paid work each year—the equivalent of 320000 jobs

National statistics indicate that middle-aged men have higher rates of depression, anxiety and suicide

Family trauma can become intergenerational affecting relationships with grandchildren

Very few service providers in Canada specifically geared towards boys, men and fathers

When men do not seek help for their crisis situation; they are 1.37x more likely to experience PTSD

Why You Should Care

“Over the years, I had grown a lot of resentment and that resentment turned against the world, to the point where it was affecting my work, my health and everybody around me. I had to change my life around.”

“My divorce was one of the most awful periods of my life and it deeply affected everyone in our family including my kids. I felt completely alone and had a hard time talking about the stress I was under. CCMF helped me realize I wasn't alone and helped me chart a positive path forward.”

“Much support, other than the Canadian Centre for Men and Families, for fathers who are alienated and trying to rebuild relationships with their kids”

“Since, I've been coming to the Centre I've opened bonds with my father. I never thought we would reconcile but recently he hugged me for the first time. If I had not gotten help from CCMF I don't know where I'd be today.”
